TRIP OVERVIEW

The June 2022 Charlottesville Civil Rights Tour will travel by bus through the South for 8 days and 7 nights to visit former plantations, Civil Rights historical sites, museums, and memorials. The trip's purpose is to examine how Southern communities are reshaping the history and memory of white supremacist trauma to form honest, inclusive narratives that incorporate their ongoing struggles for racial justice. The tour will mark the 5th anniversary of Charlottesville's 2017 Summer of Hate, and coincide with -- and inform -- the Charlottesville community's considerations of what to do with the vacant public spaces in which Confederate and settler-colonialist statues once stood.

The tour will begin where the 2018 #CvillePilgrimage culminated: in Alabama. This iteration of the trip will examine the endpoint of the lesser-known domestic slave trade, in which one million enslaved African Americans from the Upper South were separated from their families, sold, and forcibly relocated to the newly-established cotton and sugar plantations of Alabama, Mississippi, and Louisiana. In the Deep South, travelers will learn about the memorialization of slavery and resistance, and visit key sites of the Civil Rights Movement.

TESTIMONIALS

"The pilgrimage for me was very emotional and even after a year, it is hard to articulate what it meant to be a part of this experience. The pain, courage, and fortitude of those that fought the battle to freedom and those that are still fighting for equality was mind-boggling and left me in a state of self-reflection. I am left with the conviction of fighting this battle in my community and helping in any capacity that I can."

Esther Jackson-Davis

"Embarking on the Pilgrimage, I hoped the journey would leave me with a deeper and more nuanced understanding of the past, help me continue to identify and challenge my biases, and empower me to better understand my personal role in creating change. On all counts, it did. However, the bonds of community – created in such a short time over those hundreds of miles – were largely unexpected, yet transformative. The horrors of our history are undeniable, but equally so were the joy and connectedness that I experienced with my fellow pilgrims. Thank you."

Sarah

"Of all our experiences: battlefields, museums, Black-owned restaurants, historic churches, "lost cause" narratives, bridges, lunch counters, park rangers, historic district foundations, hanging steel coffins, praying, singing, dancing, marching and riding... I learned most just being with fellow pilgrims. Even when one means no harm, she may still cause a problem. Even when one recognizes no harm, she may act problematically. Even when one sticks to her own business, as she was raised to, when she is unmindful, she contributes to the problem. It's on White folk to notice harm, wise-up to the problem, and humbly to offer help creating solutions."
